Chooses Father's Birthday.
The Duke's wedding date is the anniversary of his father, King George V's birth—the late mon-arch was born June 3, 1865, and died January 20, 1936. The wedding date also is 20 days

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, who were hosts on the Riviera to Mrs. Warfield on the Riviera to Mrs. Warfield after she fled England shortly before the abdication, those who have been with the couple include Lord and Lady Brownlow, now in England, and Lord and Lady Mountbatten. Chairman Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, conceding that Justice Van Devanter's retirement "might" result in reversal of the majority opinion on the original child labor law, urged the committee not to pin hopes entirely on such a reversal.

Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, contended the committee ought to recommend legislation which witnesses said would provide a new and clear-cut test of the principles outlawed by the court's previous ruling.

Justice Van Devanter voted with the majority in the 5-4 decision which invalidated the original child labor law. The principal provision of this statute, enacted in 1916, was to forbid the shipment in interstate commerce of any ar-

DU PONT DEFENDS 'SHORT' STOCK SALE TO BUOY MARKET

Manufacturer on Stand Denies Illegal Agreement With Raskob.

NEW YORK, May 18.—(P)—Pierre S. du Pont declared on the witness stand in his government income tax suit today that he made a "short" sale of securities to John J. Raskob after the 1929 financial panic in an effort to bolster the market and protect his employes' investments.

The elderly head of the Delaware dynasty of du Ponts was on ware dynasty of du Ponts was on the stand throughout today's ses-sions, most of the questioning re-volving about this "short" sale on January 3, 1930, of 27,000 shares of Warner Brothers' stock at 40, which du Pont "recovered" later in the month at 50.

Du Pont denied governmen charges of a prior illegal agree-ment with Raskob to repurchase the securities.

The government contends tha the "short" sale was a fictitious paper transaction "rigged up" to balance off accounts in its claim of a deficiency tax of $617,316 from du Pont and $1,026,340 from Raskob.

Bulloch county claims to be the largest livestock producing county in Georgia, with an annual sale amounting to $450,000.

In addition, Bulloch contends it leads Georgia in the production of poultry with total yearly sales amounting to $320,000.

It also is the third largest cotton producing county in the state, according to statistics, with a 20,-000 average bale crop, valued at Estimates place Bulloch and Statesboro's annual income at $6,-748,000.

Essentially an agricultural county, Bulloch plants about 3,000 acres of tobacco a year. Farmers and experts contend that an average increase of about 15 per cent will be recorded gen-erally in production for the cur-

Slash Pine Does Part.

Slash pine production also is one of the basic industries of this county, and despite the fact that thousands of trees already have been sold, several hundred thou-sand trees have been set on a reforestration project, and orders al-ready have been placed for more than 1,000,000 new seedlings.
In time, the sale and production of the pine for commercial use will become one of the major cash crops for the county.

An interesting indication of the attitude of farmers in this section is that they are improving their holdings and are preparing for a bumper year. Naval stores and pe-can culture also are among the principal activities.

Bulloch has a fine system of public schools and is the home of the South Georgia Teachers' Col-lege, recognized as one of the best institutions of its kind in this sec-

VAN DEVANTER WITHDRAWS.

The retirement of Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter of the United States supreme court, making the first break in the conservative group on the court, has already led to widespread speculation as to what effect it will have on the controversy over the Rooseveltsponsored bill to increase the personnel of the court.

It is significant that the announcement of Justice Van Devanter's resignation comes simultaneously with action by the senate judiclary committee by a vote of ten to eight to report the administration's measure adversely.

Whether the opportunity given the President to place a man upon the bench more sympathetic with New Deal policies will tend to modify his insistence upon passage of the socalled "court packing" bill remains problematical. The President has asserted he will consider no compromise proposal on the measure, while senate opponents to the plan have been equally determined in their stand against it.

Justice Van Devanter was known as a conservative. He voted 15 times against administration action and 10 times with it. Yet the record shows that if a justice whose views coincided with those of the administration had been on the bench instead of Van Devanter since Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated in 1933 it would have changed the outcome of only three of these major cases.

The opportunity provided for President Roosevelt to select a new justice removes some of that alleged desirability for injecting new, young blood into the judicial branch of the government-and to that extent will strengthen the opposition to the plan. The Van Devanter retirement is certain to be cited as adding weight to the contention that, although possibly the supreme court does not adopt new and admittedly "experimental" theories of government as quickly as their proponents may gesire, evolution of thought does, through natural process, find its reflection in that tribunal.

Justice Van Devanter leaves the high tribunal under provisions of the act of March 1, 1937, permitting justices over 70 years of age to retire on full pay.

Justice Van Devanter has been a member of the supreme court for 26 years. Four of the remaining eight members of the court are eligible for retirement, Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justices McReynolds, Brandeis and

The retirement of Justice Van Devanter creates the first vacancy on the supreme court since 1932, when Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes resigned. It provides the first vacancy to be filled by nomination of President Roosevelt.

NATIONAL FOREIGN TRADE WEEK

This week is observed as National Foreign Trade Week. Throughout the nation business associations, chambers of commerce, boards of trade, foreign trade clubs and similar organizations will take stock of what has been achieved and discuss what is yet to be done to advance the foreign trade of the country.

In Atlanta the week will be opened with a luncheon today at which Dr. Alexander V. Dye, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States Department of Commerce will be the speaker. The meeting is jointly sponsored by the Atlanta Foreign Trade Club, the Chamber of Commerce, local offices of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, railroads, telegraph companies, steamship line representatives and a large department store.

Dr. Dye is one of the outstanding figures in the foreign branches of government service. He has served as consul at Nogales, Mexico, as trade commissioner at London, commercial attache at Mexico City and at Buenos Aires and as delegate and advisor at Pan-American and other international conferences.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, speaking Monday night at New Orleans, officially ushered in the annual week's observance with a thoughtful and constructive address on world commerce.

"I am glad," said Secretary Roper, "that I live at a time when problems like the development of our domestic and international trade must be studied in one pattern, in broad, national fashion in order to be constructive and lasting. This should result in closer world cooperation."

Free flowing international commerce serves, probably more than any other influence, as a factor for the maintenance of world peace. Nations which enjoy mutually beneficial trade are little apt to disrupt that profitable interchange with war.

The increase of friendship and knowledge of each other between the peoples of the world grows more rapidly when the urge of commerce impels study. The producer who would sell his goods in another country must, of necessity. learn the needs and desires for those goods among the foreign population with which he wishes to do business. National lealousies and rivalries melt in the resultant friendships.

When all the world learns that all countries are inhabited, not by strange creatures termed "foreigners," but by "just folks," then all the world will refuse to take part in the insanity called war. International trade is the greatest agency for the promotion of that friendly knowledge of each other.

TO FIT TODAY'S NEED

Dr. M. D. Collins, Georgia superintendent of schools, has named a committee to revise the standard curriculum of high schools in the state. It is planned to complete the revision in time for the opening of the school term in the fall.

Unquestionably modernization of teaching in Georgia's high schools has been too long delayed. Education, to fill its place in the scheme of progress, must grow. Change is essential to advancement and stagnation means failure.

Many of the courses taught in the high schools today have been unchanged, in basic substance, for a quarter century. While they were, no doubt, well adapted to the needs of students of 25 years ago, changing conditions of life have created new educational needs.

The modern high school curriculum should retain those basic courses essential to wellrounded education. There should be available, however, specialized training fitted to the conditions of life faced by the individual student. Courses in vocational work, agricultural, industrial, commercial, professional or scientific. should be available for each boy or girl who seeks equipment of hand and brain adapted to a chosen career.

The program Dr. Collins seeks should make the high schools increasingly valuable to the youth of the state. It should bring dividends in future generations better equipped for life and for the constitutionally guaranteed pursuit of happiness.

THE SOCIAL WELFARE COUNCIL The Social Welfare Council is preparing for an intensive study of 55 agencies in Atlanta and vicinity, active in the health, educational, recreational and social service fields. It is the dual purpose of the survey to do away with overlapping of services and to outline a constructive program to meet most effectively the social needs of the community.

Such a service will, if comprehensively performed, serve a vital need. While much has been done to eliminate duplication of effort in these humanitarian causes, there is still-a waste through overlapping and a lack of systematic co-ordination. Growing interest in those less fortunate makes imperative an intelligently directed and united effort to lift the living conditions of the subaverage citizens.

There is assurance of wise direction of the council in the personnel of those at its head. James L. Wells, businessman; Stephens Mitchell, lawyer; Cherry Emerson, engineer, and the Rev. Lawrence A. Davis, a minister, bring a diversity of viewpoint that should add much to the value of its findings

"Our hope," says a statement of the council plans. "is that as the council grows it will gradually becomes a complete clearing house in the community through which all plans for new or altered programs will go in order that we may get at basic facts and at a co-operative and co-ordinated plans for the future."

CUPID MAILS HIS DARTS

Approximately 50,000 marriages a year result from the activities of mail order matrimonial bureaus, according to the Review of Reviews. There are in the United States today, the magazine states, 150 marriage brokers with 200,000 clients. If 50,000 couples follow the mail order path to the altar each year, it means one-half of those who answer the brokers' advertisements receive the husband or wife ordered.

Further statistical romance reveals that one out of every 200 marriages in the United States is the outcome of a marriage brokers' business efficiency.

Thus Cupid lays aside his bow for an addressing machine and leaves the moonlit tryst for an office in a modern skyscraper.

There are no statistics available, however, on the percentage of successful marriages among the mail order brides and grooms. Whether such connubial ventures frequently lead to the isles of content or more often to the wreck strewn reef of divorce, none can tell. Only the 100,000 principals can report on the sentimental effectiveness of a mail order catalog. and they keep their secrets of bliss or tragedy largely to themselves.

Editorial of the Day

HOME IS ON THE HIGHWAY (From the Richmond Times-Dispatch.)
In this age of wanderlust, when travel is such an easily purchasable commodity, no one any longer dogmatically adheres to the old fiction that "home is where you hang your childhood." Not in this day when you can pick up your home for a song, and ride on endless highways! When the "trailer" first made its appearance, neal would be limited to retired railroad conduc tors and government clerks; that it would take place of the little cottage by the sea. But today in the moving and growing metropolis on the bounding main highway are found all classes of American society, including notable members

What problems this moving situation will pre sent to the states remains to be seen. Certainly they could not be amiss in moving promptly to provide any protection possible to the beauties of the highway, so rapidly becoming a flowering wilderness of hot-dog stands and billboards. The beauty of the scene must be preserved for the gypsy at the moving window!

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

MANANA WASHINGTON, May 18.—Uncertain evidence as to Mr.

R's seriousness about balancing the budget came out of his recent series of conferences with his congressional leaders. They brought word back to anxious legislators that he would balance it in the old Spanish manner, "manana," i. e., in 1938.

Although this is unsatisfactory to those who want an immediate balance, they seem to be somewhat appeased by the new assurance.

What makes them so sure is the fact that it could have been done this year if the President really had wanted to do it, and they do not see how he can avoid doing it next year.

They are surprised he has not become involved in something like his present threat to anti-packing supreme court Democrats long before this. SPREAD The power message which the President has been promising to congress will contain a recommendation for a flock of new power authorities like TVA. There will probably be one for each of the great river systems of the country. What his advisers have been saying he has in mind is one for the entire eastern seaboard, one for the Pacific northwest, one for the Colorado

The reason he is sending it up soon is to take the congressional mind off the more controversial measures now pending.

NERVOUSNESS Wall Street has been suffering psychosis neuroses over gold and 100 per cent margins, among other things. Or, at any rate, government authorities attribute the recent declines to widespread shivering over these two topics. (They do not mention strikes.)

No authorities here have anything very comforting to say about the gold situation. They know they are in a mess, and if anyone has a satisfactory solution he is keeping it from the others. They comfort themselves with the thought that there is nothing immediately alarming and that current irons now in the international fires (the British working arrangement, for one) may ease their

The 100 per cent margins talk, however, seems to be just one of those Wall Street rumors. The best of authorities say there is absolutely nothing in it, and will be nothing for a long, long time, meaning, if ever.

Apparently what they intend to do is this: If the market, some time in the future, gets into a boom stage which they consider to be dangerous, they will use 100 per cent margins as one of the things to hammer it down. That may be a leng time off, the way things are going at present

BLIND SPOT Mr. R. has been saying he wants the Wallace evernormal granary proposal adopted, but all he is sure of getting is a hearing. The house agriculture committee will hold one shortly, inviting all the farm leaders in to ascertain what they want. Unless insiders are very badly informed, the farm politicos are more or less lukewarm if not actually divided, on the subject. Congressional authorities expect to develop that fact at the hearings.

The granary idea was not discussed during any of the recen congressional conferences at the White House. The President is advised of inner house objections. However, the hearings will help to take the national spotlight off the supreme court issue, and anything which accomplishes this should be a desirable relief, from the CHILL The left-out-in-the-cold mood of congress is illustrated by a story concerning Chairman Hatton Summers of the house judiciary committee. Ordinarily he would be the leader in the house for Mr. R's court packing program, just like Senator Ashurst in the senate.

One of his dinner partners assumed as much, the other night. She tried to make pleasant conversation by saying: "Well, I suppose you were one of those whom the President called in and consulted about his supreme court bill."

"Nope," said Summers"—"Just called in."

Political WASHINGTON, May 18.—Those Americans who are shocked by James Farley's blunt language in the supreme court matter seem to forget, if they ever were aware of, Mr. Farley's career as chairman of the New York prize fight commission. But to those who were close observers of the little dictatorship which ruled the cauliflower industry by whim and edict in those days it is no startling news that James would use political pressure to compel a change in the supreme court or for any other purpose which seemed laudable to him.

When James was boss of the prize fight commission he and his two associates had a rule forbidding the presence of questionable characters at the contests of the lithe, lean bodies. Not only were questionable characters to be denied official credentials as managers and seconds, but they were to be barred from the arenas even as cash customers in the interests of chivalry and the ideals of American youth which, as you may remember, was deriving lofty inspiration from the fairness and fortitude of such models as Jack Sharkey, Charlie Phil Rosenberg and Primo Carnera. But James was also a practical politician on his way to decide the future of the United States supreme court and there came a time when, invariably, at the big fights at the Garden, in the first row of seats, just around the corner from Jim's official throne there sat a group of the most distinguished booticians and speakeasy magnates of the prohibition Mr. Farley knew them all and all about them, as, indeed, so did everyone in town, for they were very famous operators. But here he sat in his regular place and there they sat in theirs, week questionable characters whose presence might tend to impair the nobility of the sport. What harm they did or what good might have cannot say, but James had officially recognized some peril in their presence and there he was and there they were and there was the rule.

Thus prepared Conventional for little de-Enforcement partures from forcement, nobody was much surprised when, on the night of Primo Carnera's debut in the Garden. who should come down the aisle with him to serve as counsel in his corner but Honest Abe Attell, the nius of the fake world series of 1919, and Jack Johnson, who had written a book stating that he had thrown his fight with Jess Willard and thus had cast a foul blot on that which is known as the

FAIR ENOUGH The Race Isn't Fair If One Carries the Handicap of Old Wounds

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

"That all men are created free and equal."

Have you ever seen two such men?

Two boys are born in the same community at the same hour.

Their bodies are equally sturdy and potentially of equal stature.

Their minds are equal in native ability and capacity.

When they are 50 they have achieved equal distinction and won equal wealth. Men point to them as proof of equal opportunity in a free land. But observe the different price they paid to be what they now are.

One was born in a great house and was heir to generations of mellow culture and decent pride. His acquaintances, from infancy, were near and distant relatives and family friends of the class. He was sent to a private school with boys of his own He wasn't trained as a prissy or prude. In fact, little effort was made to train him. He merely absorbed things from his surroundings. He conformed to family custom because that was the easy thing to do. He was an idealist, like other boys, and he wished like the heroes of fiction. He saw men drink, but saw no drunkards. He heard men swear, but heard no smut. He accepted bodily and mental clean-liness as the normal state of civilized people.

cause such things were not done. He respected himself, with reason, and had no acquaintance with shame. He was a gentleman. The other kid was brought up in a sordid atmosp nt, strife and the consciousness of inferiority. His neighborhood and his clothing determined his associates. The kids he knew smoked and cursed and talked fiith before they were ten years old. They "found" things when no one was watching. ethical rules were few: don't squeal; don't whine; don't get

They knew they were inferior. The kid, being an idealist, hated his environment and felt ashamed of it and his parents. He hated everything. But he took the easy way, lived as the other boys did, and absorbed his character from his environment.

Having no family or ethical pride, his one hope was in religion. With religion to give him ideals and rules of conduct, he began a new life which led him, by a long hard way, to final success.

But he didn't feel equal to the first man, who was no more successful. He remembered the smut. He cringed with shame when he remembered his secret record. He felt inferior, because of what his early environment did to him, and that isn't equality. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution.) WORLD'S WINDOW

When the promised southern newsprint industry is so realized that its history can be written, a name that will shine in that history along with those of Charles H. Herty and James G. Stahlman is that of the late Edward Barrett. Reminder of this comes to us in a recent letter from W. H. Brydges, superintendent of a pulp and pa-per company at Big Island, Va. Noting often comments on the sub-ject of making newsprint from southern pine, Mr. Brydges writes of his introduction to the subect 16 years ago when he was an employe of a paper company at Niagara Falls.

"T. M. Uptergraff, president of the company, was approached by a representative of Mr. Barrett, of Birmingham, who was desirous of learning if newsprint could be made from the pine of the south-

Their mother died when he was nine, and she assumed responsibility for his upbringing. She tutored him, kept house for him and continued to be a mother to him far beyond his youth, in fact until she died. There was a deep and abiding love between the two, and when, dur-ing the last years of her life, Nellie Cardozo became bedridden, Benjamin gave up his friends and beloved books to spend all his

Undoubtedly Cardozo's devotion to his sister is the chief reason he has never married. Undoubtedly, also, her love inspired deep reverence and chivalry to-deep reverence and chivalry to-ward women—a chivalry which few men, either married or single, have developed to the same degree.

Justice Cardozo's chivalry is apparent on the bench, where his sympathies invariably lean toward women. It was Cardozo who laid down the dictum that a deserted wife has the right to draw living expenses from the bank funds of her husband. Raffaele de Stefano had abandoned his wife and child, and when she went to court to obtain access to his bank account he pleaded infringement of his constitutional rights under the "due process" clause. Cardozo brushed aside this claim as immaterial. "The law," he declared, "does not stand upon punctilios if "Glama Stefano" and child, and when she went to court to obtain access to his bank account he pleaded infringement of his constitutional rights under the "due process" clause. Cardozo brushed aside this claim as immaterial. "The law," he declared, "does not stand upon punctilios if "does not stand upon punctilios if there is a starving wife at home." It was Cardozo also who checked the efforts of Bud Fisher to renege on an alimony agreement. The famed Mutt and Jeff car-

No "Off Color" Stories.
Never have his friends heard from Cardozo an off-color story or a word of innuendo against female word of inhuendo against female virtue; nor would they dare indulge in the mildest form of ribaldry in his presence.

And although Cardozo is one of the most liberal men on the supreme court, his liberality stops on questions of morality. Owing chiefly to the influence of his sister he will not go even as far as the pious ex-Senator Smoot, of Utah, long unofficial censor of American morals, in admitting slightly risque pictures and sexy literature into the United States. A few years ago the justice's secretaries, concerned about his lack of recreation, persuaded him to join them at the theater, where they saw Noel Coward's "Design for Living," a hot bit of ultramod-ern sophistication in which Lunt and Fontanne were starring with barnyard gusto. The evening was not a success. The pained shock of the justice was unescapable. But while there was a certain coolness in his conversation on the way home, he said nothing of a directly reproving nature to his young hosts. Miss Kate Tracy, the family housekeeper for more than a quarter of a century, however, was not as considerate of their

Miss Tracy, incidentally, rules the old Cardozo home on West 75th street, Manhattan, with a kindly but firm hand, and has made herself the special guardian of the justice's health. For many years Cardozo has suffered from years Cardozo has suffered from valvular heart trouble, an illness that has serious recurrent periods, with period of apparent health between. During the summer of 1935 Cardozo was so ill it was doubtful for a time whether he could return to Washington for the opening of court. He is better now, but Miss Tracy watches over him but Miss Tracy watches over him like a brood he and is particu-larly careful not to let him eat sweets, of which she is very fond but which are banned by the doctor. Anna, the long-time family cook, has standing orders to serve no more of her cherished pastry concoctions.

Anna, however, who has the same feeling of protective tender-ness toward the justice so charac-teristic of all who know him, con-siders this rule a needless depriteristic of all who know him, considers this rule a needless deprivation, and when she thought Miss Tracy's vigiance was relaxed, prepared an especially rich and tempting dessert. But the everwatchful Miss Tracy discovered the secret confection and confiscated it. Instead she had Anna prepare a dish of lemon jello.

Method of Reprisal.

Cardozo offered no objections and dutifully ate what Miss Tracy decreed. But Anna was indignant over such harsh treatment of her beloved judge. And in her own beloved judge. And in her own way she figured out a method of reprisal against Miss Tracy. Every night for seven nights thereafter she served lemon jello for dessert. For six days the justice submitted without protest. But on the seventh, he demurred.

"I think," he said gently, "I do not care for lemon jello this evening."

Unlike his close friend, Justice Brandeis, Cardoza is not a crusader. He did not win his spurs by deeds of daring in the public arena. His rise to the illustrious position he occupies in American jurisprudence was as undramatic as the life he leads under the watchful eye of Miss Tracy. The flame of righteous outrage against injustice burns as fiercely in his breast as in that of Brandeis. His grasp of modern economics is just

Trouble on Wheels Rolls Man to Jail

Trouble piled up on a negro bicyclist when the wheel piled into Patrolman G. F. Cole at the farmers' market early last night. The collision not only knocked the negro, George Smith, of 105 Piedmont avenue, from the wheel, but bounced a small glass and a pint of whisky out of a pocket. Questioned by the officer, who was unhurt, Smith said he was peddling drinks at a dime each.

Then another negro, Columbus Powell, approached, told the "law" Smith had taken his bicycle. Both negroes were charged with being drunk, but in additional control of the cont dition, Smith was charged with reckless driving of a bicycle, suspicion of larceny, whisky and

MEXICAN OIL WORKERS TO WALK OUT MAY 27

MEXICO CITY, May 18.—(#)—
The Mexican oil labor syndicate notified oil companies today that a threatened general walkout of oil workers would start May 27 "as scheduled."

The unions thus apparently rejected the oil industry's peace offer of wage increases totaling $2,000,000 a year. While operators awaited the workers' answer a one-day strike halted production in the Aguila company's Poza Rica field.

Twas ladies' night out at Ponce de Leon last night. . It was the first such evening of the year. And that ladies were there in great, shrill swarms. They know baseball, do the ladies, and those that don't know are learning. But they will emit shrill screams at each and every event of the game, such as, for instance, a foul ball or a brisk pop fly to the first base-

They cheered the Rookie Larry Miller, who had a debut as a starting pitcher. The boy has a suit against the Crackers for nonsupport. It is tough enough being a rookie and starting one's first game. The Crackers made it tougher by kicking the ball around under the lights.

His efforts earned him another chance. The first run came on an error and there was sloppy handling on other chances. He showed a fast one, a good curve ball and a change of pace. But he added to his own misfortunes by being a bit wild. If the Cracker veterans were going along in good shape, Miller would be in a much better spot. As it is, he rates further consideration.

It was a great night, proving once again the popularity of night baseball and the wisdom of the management in playing only two night games per week. By doing so it remains a nov-

THE PHANTOM FIGHT.

Quite the daffiest situation in a long history of daffiness exists in the heavyweight prize ring industry.

The spectacle of Max Schmeling training for a fight he isn't going to have, adds to the general hilarity of the summer.

The prize ring has had lawsuits before and injunctions galore. But never before have they had the leading contender training furiously to get in shape to fight a man who isn't going to fight him.

"The phantom fight," they are calling it. "And there is much speculation here and there as to why Max Schmeling went off to Speculator to train when Braddock and Louis are training for a fight to be held in Chicago.

It is a curious business and the New York papers are sending their men up to write pieces about the German boy who upset Joe Louis when that young man was thought to be invincible. Schmeling is going through a real training routine.

It would be my idea that Schmeling would beat Jimmy Braddock. He has the style for it. And Braddock knows it. And Joey Gould knows it. So, that probably explains why they are fighting in Chicago.

If Braddock can win that one he will be champion another year. And that means more money, which he needs. The title hasn't brought in much cash to the big Irishman whose ring come-back made history. He is to get a guarantee of $300,000 for the Chicago fight. And that will help some.

Bitsy Grant, our Mr. Grant, is training at Forest Hills in New York. He's training there with the Americans and the

Mr. Grant looks longingly at the Australians because he thinks if given the chance he can step in there and win a match for the good old U. S. A. But first, there is the little matter of Frankie Parker, his arch foe and friend. And Frankie Parker is rather a tough proposition to match.

"I'm just hoping for the best," said the Atlantan. "And I hope I can get a chance."

The Forest Hills courts are crowded daily and all the tennis nuts go out and watch the Americans and ustraliane as t ing matches.

There is a general feeling the Australians will take the American team right in stride. But the American players don't agree. Bitsy Grant believes they will be able to upset them. And if he isn't playing, he'll be cheering Frankie Parker.

I was thinking about golf anyhow, having spent ome hours on the way down spotting golf courses from the plane window. I'm the sort of a guv who sits up there and comforts himself that if anything did go wrong the golf courses would make great landing places.

Dorothy Kirby's 75 was the low score of vesterday. And if she can just keep that putter going she should move forward another step today. She is one of the better young players and has more shots than most of the girls with a higher rating.

One of these days, when she synchronizes the whole thing, she'll really get going. A good showing in this

Meanwhile, Grandpa Beckett, who teaches the young lady golf, is reported in a swivet and a dither. He works harder than Dorothy Kirby when she is playing. He follows along and put all he has into every swing.

WANTED-A PITCHER.

If there is anyone or any corporation in need of cash they can obtain same by selling a pitcher to our Mr. Earl Mann. It appears the C-ackers have everything they need except pitching. And pitching happens to be about 75 per cent of baseball.

Buy a pitcher isn't the easiest task. There isn't any use buying one unless he is a good one. And it is perfectly shocking how few good pitchers there are. And how attached their owners are to them. Good pitchers aren't to be had just for the wanting. The average fan thinks all a baseball owner has to do is buy a pitcher. That sounds simple. It isn't. The club made its 300th hit of the season on Monday. And that happens to be quite a lot of hits for the first month of the time winner, is leading with four season. As soon as Mr. Mann can buy his pitcher the club will Talking fights with Alan Gould and Paul Mickelson in New York, the talk ran back to the late W. L. Stribling.

One of his madcap adventures made one of the better stories in the summer weeks when he was training for his fight with Max Schmeling.

He borrowed a plane and flew it to Schmeling's camp. came in at about 3,000 feet and power dived it straight for the ring where the German was at work. The plane came so low the spectators ducked out of their seats. He repeated it and the third time cut his motor and yelled, "Hey, Max!"

Stribling had as much courage as any man who ever stepped in the ring. He didn't have the instinct to fight. It never appealed to him to hurt someone, and that is what fighting means.

Putter Working Well, Dot Has 75, Wins, 7-5 By Dorothy Kirby

EAST LAKE COUNTRY CLUB, May 18.—Well, I actually got my putter to working today and did a little better. I won my match on the 13th green but played on out to see what kind of score I would have. I finished with a 75 after throwing away two strokes on a short par-3 hole.

There were some good matches and quite a few 19-hole ones. The defending champ, Mrs. Mark McGarry, went 24 holes before the battle could be decided. She played Mrs. Winger, from Texas. This was some match all the way. Mrs. McGarry finished the first nine with a 1-up margin.

Another good match was between Kathrine Hemphill and Martha Daniel. Kathrine managed to win by 3 and 1. Martha was 1 down at the 11th. Imagine this, shooting a 37 and being only 1 up! That is what happened this morning. Martha went out in 38 and was one stroke back of Kathrine and also 1 down.

A good match tomorrow will be between Marion Miley and Kathrine Hemphill. This should be close all the way. Mrs. Dan Chandler, the medalist, had a hard time of it with Mrs. Frank Ford. The match ended on the 18th with Mrs. Chandler

From now on out the matches will begin to get harder and tougher. I only hope the weather holds out, for it has been perfect so far. (I don't guess I had better say anything; the first thing I know it will be raining.)

We are having May Day at the Seminary today so I guess I will have to forget golf for the present and think about dancing, because I am going to be a Spanish dancer this afternoon. I think I had rather be on the golf course. I know I would feel more at home. By the way, I play Mrs. Sam Israel, of New Orleans, tomorrow, and only time will tell.

Miss Dean Van Landingham, of upset of the 26th annual Southern Women's golf tournament with a 1-up victory over Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., one of the favored stars. All other favorites survived the first round, although Mrs. Mark McGarry, the defending champion from St. Petersburg, Fla., had to drop a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the 24th green to win from Mrs. R. E. Winger, of Fort Worth, Texas. Mrs. McGarry's victory tied the Southern record for extra holes, of 24, made in 1914 at Knoxville, Tenn., and it was the second successive tourney in which she survived in extra hole play. Last year at Oklahoma City, Mrs. McGarry eliminated Mrs. Dan Chandler, the medalist on the 23rd green. Dorothy Kirby, Georgia's own state champion for two straight years, set the scoring pace Tues-day with a 75, one over par and defeated Mrs. Robert Trilck, of Birmingham, 7-5, in the largest score of the day. SpurgeonChandlerBlanks Chisox on Six Hits; Yanks Cop, 4-0.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Youthful Chubby Dean kept the Athletics on top of the American league by hitting a three-run hom-er in the eighth that gave the Mackmen an 8-to-7 victory over the Detroit Tigers yesterday.

Peters, first up for the A's in the eighth, walked. Moses was hit by a pitched ball. Eldon Auker then fanned Bob Johnson, only to see Dean, former Duke University star, slam one of his underhand pitches over the right-field wall to win the game. It was the fourth straight victory for the veteran Harry Kelley.

Spurgeon Chandler moved another step nearer a regular berth on the Yankee pitching staff when he shut out the Chicago White Sox, 4-0, with six hits and thus kept the Yanks within a half game of the league-leading Athletics. Victory was sweet for the for-mer University of Georgia foot-ball star, for on May 9 he had hurled a five-hit game and yet dropped the decision to the White Sox. Today he came to his own assistance with two of the winners' eight hits, and batted in a A crowd of 12,389 saw the Yanks execute three smart double plays to pull Chandler out of jams, and watched Frank Crosetti, at shortstop, handle 13 chances perfectly.

The Cleveland Indians used six pitchers, including Bob Feller, their ace, while defeating the Boston Red Sox, 7-4, with a surprising ninth-inning rally.

Feller went into action for the first time since he came down with an arm trouble in St. Louis on April 21, in the ninth inning. He faced but one batter, Doc Cramer, and when Bob threw him but one strike while passing him, Manager Steve O'Neill yanked him for Lloyd Brown.

A ninth-inning single by Catcher Walter Millies scored the winning run to give Washington a 7-6 triumph over the St. Louis Browns.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD,

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am married to a man who is as sweet as pie when he has his own way and so far I have been giving him the ropes, loving peace as I do. But here lately I have been thinking that if this keeps up my soul won't be my own. Just to show you how he runs it over me: Last night we were going to the movie, he wanted to see one and I another one. Finally after we had argued until "e were both exhausted 1 said he could go where he wanted to and I would go where I wanted to. He let me go, too, and was furious with me for suggesting
it. As nearly as I can make out all this talk about married people adjusting to one another simply means "Let George do it his way."

NEWLYWED.

Answer: Which is more precious to you, love with peace that will be enduring or love in the ring that may or may not last? This is the question for you to answer. A groom who won't permit his wife to choose the movie she prefers, will always decide what the two of them shall do, provided they do it together. The bride who can't get her way when she is a bride may take her choice of commitget her way when she is a bride may take her choice of commit-ting herself to the policy of fall-ing in line, or of bucking and maintaining a semblance of in-dependence at the price of— who knows what. There's no middle ground.

"For better or for worse" means what it says: Take him as is and make the best of it; he's always a pig in a poke. Surely there are some wives who can't knuckle to selfish autocratic husbands. If these ladies draw dictators in the matrimonial lottery nothing remains for them but to put up the mains for them but to put up the ropes and prepare for the life-long struggle until one or the other is put to sleep. You see dictators are born that way and a few object lessons in independence administered by their wives accomplishes nothing but to enrage them.

While the average man can be flattered into letting his wife have her way, the dictator can't be. The average man can be ca-joled and jockeyed into the position of compromise with his wife's wishes but the dictator can't be. The gal that has one of these boys on her hands may as well face the facts: That ad-justment between her and him consists not only in letting George do it his way but includes assuring him that this is the way she would do it if left to her. Then she must affix the proof by doing it with him.

If she loves George and loves peace, this won't be too hard. She will gradually forget that she's been playing a part as the part becomes second nature.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Monday.—Yesterday afternoon I took a very fascinating young namesake of mine, Eleanor Cynthia Lund, who is about 19 months old, out to visit the hardlest little six-week-old twins I have seen in a long time. Besse Furman, a one-time Associated Press reporter, has acquired a new job, and these small twins of hers, born in her brother's home in Nebraska, were brought by motor from there to their home here in Washington.

They held a levee yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Garner and I and a number of other friends, including several children, made their acquaintance and decided they were quite the most remarkable infants we had ever seen. They had stood the trip wonderfully and showed no signs of fatigue or irritation.

For the first time in weeks, the family, consisting of my husband and myself, James and Betsy, and Elliott and Ruth, had Sunday evening supper by ourselves. I had to scramble so few eggs I hardly felt it was worth doing. At 9:15 this morning, my brother, my daughter-in-law, Ruth, and I went to Washington airport. I was to christen a new plane which is inaugurating the hourly service between Washington and New York. The wind blew and the position in which I stood was a trifle awkward; if I came out on the platform my skirt tended to blow above my head. If I stood inside the airplane door, it was extremely difficult to break the bottle. In the interests of modest I finally stood inside the door. Captain Eddie Rickenbacker finally helped me to break the bottle, which I could never have done alone. At least an airplane does not slide away from you as a boat does.

Once back in the White House, there was a press conference and

The conly read'a little part of the book, but its charm is very evident. If you have an opportunity, I think you will find "She Wrote It All Down" a very pleasant afternoon's entertainment. There were several other appointments, and before they were over I was presented with another book which I can hardly wait to read. It is called "College Men. Their Making and Unmaking." An interesting title indeed and one that will tempt many of us to look inside and get the author's point of view. I sometimes question whether any college in which one does not have to work one's way through, really gives the maximum of value to its students during the four years they spend there.

A few people came to lunch and several groups are to be received this afternoon. The largest group will be the graduating classes of the various Washington private schools, who come annually for a spring reception.

A black widow.

It is well to remember those points, but black widows really are something to watch out for! Each something to watch out for! Each female has a poison sac, and when the poison gets into the blood stream it will do damage. Several deaths have been reported, but usually the bite does not cause death—it simply brings pain and illness to the victim.

Drop for drop, the venom of a black widow is worse than the venom of a rattlesnake. The spider, however, can send only a tiny

BLACK WIDOW SPIDERS.

A great deal has been said and written about the black widow spider during the past few years. The danger told about it has caused some persons to be afraid of spiders in general.

Time has passed, however, since the first general "scare," and we have found that dangerous as it may be, the black widow is no cause to put us in terror of the whole spider tribe. Millions of spiders are going about their business of spinning webs, and catchness of spinning webs, and catch-ing flies and other insects. Most The full-grown female is the Most spiders do little, if any, harm to human beings, and many of them human beings, and many of them help to rid the world of insect aching pains in the muscles inside half an hour. These pains may be followed by fever, and the limbs of the victim may be paralyzed. A person made sick by a bite usually finds it hard to breathe. Two weeks may pass before he grows well again.

Some hospitals have serum which can be injected into patients who are bitten by black widows. When the serum is used, it does a great deal to make the suffering ess.
